A place for religious assembly set within the landscape of Holton Lee.

Faith House provides a quiet room for individual contemplation and a larger space for religious assembly, meetings, display of art and rehearsals.

The building, which won The Guardian Best British Building of the Year Award 2003, is an elegant flat roofed timber-framed structure which sits at the top of a raised path. Views of the surrounding countryside are afforded by full-length windows, opening the interior spaces to the trees and the sky beyond.

The setting is enhanced by circle of cut trees, installed from floor to ceiling in the centre of the quiet room, creating a contemplative environment in which nature and art can be admired and studied.
